Abstract

India is meant in different connotations and aspects according to the people's understanding, in which people are able to quote and mention that India is developing country and under developing country despite many of leaders and people have been telling that India is a developing country since 1947.legitamatly and literally India has been meant by uneducated and educated people that it is one of the under developing country than developing country because ,since 1947 onwards it has been developing by not moving and touching even some criteria of the developed country's economic ,social and political status. In this angle it seems to be every one of India's citizens perception that India is not able to develop its destiny owing to large scale corruption and commission in all the government orifices and sectors thereby rich people, politicians and property holding community alone are able to determine India's needs and fate than voting people or ordinary people. This paper is attempting to delineate and discuss India's problem and prospects with an interest to analyse its backwardness in its social, political and economical aspects .Most of people are defending on the development of the India in terms of social, political and economical with an aim to strengthen their futures and career with an aim to poster their children life.

Keywords: Survival, Women's rights, male domination, Partiality, Pathetic situation of women and scarcity of job.

Introduction

At every one of Indian citizen's tongue pronounced and proposed that India is a great democratic, secular, socialistic and developing country in the South Asian continent comparing to its adjacent fellow countries .Its name and growth has been monotonous and unaltered in the path of developing its infrastructures though many governments have come to power since 1947. Glorifying , praising and making famous of India's growth by Indian in India is not new phenomena in its history but people have to think and estimate whether India has been growing and developing in its politics, economical ,social, and military aspects. Unless and other wise people feel and realise about this matter India has been at the fixed point without an any improvement in its sovereignty and political prosperity thereby common people and daily wagers 's life would be cheated and neglected. So, without applauding and prising India's development in unrealistic ways people have to foresight and forecast what type of mistakes India have been facing in its administration, what are the challenges faced by India from its internal politics and who have been hurdles in its developments must be discussed with an interest to propel its original developments toward achieving super power goal and ambitions?.

On the eve and occasion of the India's republic and independence days entire Indians are popularising, applauding and appreciating India's famous, glory, history and achievements rather than appreciating, appraising and quoting approximately what yet India should do in its social changes, political changes, economical changes and other inevitable parts and organs of the governance with an interest to fortify its sovereignty in the competitive political environment?. Since leaders, people, experts, social volunteers, Non governmental organisation and other government elite officers are forgotten to promote India's goal and strategy in terms of achieving global political benefits and super powers status and also attaining global political recognition. India has been just like as it was under the British people's rule because it kept India's status at down and not cared owing to rule and exploit India continuously. To enable India to attain its freedom, fighters are struggled to get independence, for which they initiated various programmes, strategy and tools in non violence ways. After ,But no useful in attaining independence from the British people because, most of people including government job holders ,property holders ,power holders and sound people on community wise are dominating over rest of people in social, political, economical and other administrative aspects. Even still now rest of people are waiting to attain all developments that are attained by the majority people already. To overcome and overwhelm these stumbling blocks India's freedom fighters are worked, struggled, fought and frightened lot the British people. Dedicated their best work at day and night with an interest to enable poor people to attain all their political, social and economical needs. Really the saddest life of poor people seems to be ugly and unstructured to the eyes of Indian democracy, it would be good When common and innocent people think to feel happy in accessing and attaining their needs and necessities without any cumbersome. Even after 75 years of India's independent social and economic conditions of them is prevailing without any alteration and changes thereby India is suffocating to develop its image in the international political platform. Truly, India has to promote its people's status according to its constitutionally established ideologies and principals so, to stop poor people's blaming ,murmuring and prattling by thinking their worst social economical and political conditions ,government of India has to do certain remedial measure for its bright future in the international arena .

According to Kaudilya and Arthasasthra leaders must be dutiful, sincere and uncorrupted in governing the country and politics, who must know all the system and process of the government and administration then they may be member of the government. In those days adequate and enough attentions are paid on governance and administration according to kaudilya and Arthasastra's doctrines with an aim to produce and make suitable and strong leaders therein strong society would be established, was the major dreams of the those days leaders except exploiting, vandalising, creating communal violence, governing people based on the race, color, caste and community. Against those ideas and principles in present days people are being ruled by unethical leaders, immorality politicians ,corrupted power holders and caste and religious fanatic people thereby people's dreams, hard works, success ,victory, achievements, progress in education, social system, integrity and developments of the college and university are buried and vanished. As a leader so is people like this people are not like leaders but leaders are mismatched to people's good characters in India soil .

What extent and how far leaders are being straightforward and genuine in ruling the people? their governance would indestructible and invincible as it people life also would be having plenty of success and developments according to leader's good characters but in last one decade India has been facing plethora of problems in the form of religious ,caste ,color, race and community discrepancies ,which is happening continuously in the nook and corner of the India since ruling system and proclivity of the leaders are being attached with religious and community sentiments thereby people belong to lower, weaker and marginalised sections are prattling ,blaming and suffering lot about religious sentiment's problems as well as leader's characters are associated with religion and caste system .

Reflections of the maladministration's over the people's survival and subsistence in Tindivanam Taluk, Tamilnadu

Sample size is 50 were taken in Tindivanam Bus stand regarding to know Construction workers status.

Information of the Construction's labours in Tindivanam (special focus on women)

	Male from 30-55 age	Reasons	Female from 40-60 age	Reasons
1	Caste	SC people	Caste	BC people
2	Occupation	Masons	Occupation	Construction workers/helpers
3	Native places	Tindivanam Around	Native places	Around Tindivanam
4	Property status	0-2 acres	Property Status	01-1-2 acres
5	Education Status	10/12/BA	Education Status	10/12/BA
6	Marital status	Married	Marital status	Married

In these 50 samples which are collected from both male and female in Tindivanam bus stand who were waiting to go to construction working to be different places between the Pondicherry and Tindivanam around .Most of them working construction work and mason works form different native places of the Tindivanam ,among 50 samples gender wised classified 25 male and 25 female ,many of them being helpers and masons from the SC community and few of them being as helpers and masons from BC community. Giving work to them is based on the location the mason leader, some time work is given to relatives continuously rest of people will go to home without job, through participatory interactions this study is revealing that most of the completed 10th, XIIth and BA both male and female due to family hardship they are going to this work, all are married people from low income and low property family.

Most of people having said that wage is not properly paid, treatment is very poor, commission is also taken by the career provider or job provider, nothing improvement is happened though they do that work long time they don't have proper licence ,recognition with an insurance from the government for the welfare of their future and present life. To go to work different places around the Tindivanam these people will have to come to Tindivanam buss stand from various distances such as 2 to 15 kilometres despite all of them will not get job except few people known and regularly doing people ,job would be provided according to job availability in which job would be provided to who will give commission to the leaders .These messages are gathered from them, has made so much worry researcher when he think about their children futures and their survival. Regarding to this events government has to bring a good law through labour department as to protect their life from all types of vulnerability.

Women's situation in the construction works

Basically and fundamentally women are vulnerable in our society from this concept people who are hiring and giving job to them in construction works and fields should not treat women in undignified, disrespected and impolite ways. Since they are being weaker in their economic and social status they tend to expect good treatment from their boss and leaders. Gender bias and partiality is happening even in the construction works in which female are facing lot of problems from the male masons and helpers when they work together. From this situation they are not able to get back since jobs are mandatory and needful one, most of women working by tolerating all types of tortures of the male sections to earning purposes for pay interest, repay borrowed money and pay for self-help group. Owing to their social needs and financial needs they are working under this cruel situations but these situation must be rectified by government's interferences toward protecting their dignity and respects even when they go to whatever works for their survival. Since male people's income is absented in the contemporary period female people are working day and night in lot of works with an interest to save their family and Chiltern's futures. Male people have been addicted to evil habits such as gambling, drinking, using tobacco and Ganja thereby they are becoming feeble and moribund so gradually their responsibility is beard and undertaken by the female people ,in this occasion they are facing male people's problems in the working places.

Conclusion

Society is having both male and female they must be respected each other's without any gender bias and discriminations, regarding to seeking and getting employment opportunities both genders must be respected and treated properly according to the human beings perfect sense, male have to think that female is their eternal entity keep coming until their burial ground and life without any vested interest. In all the work female must be available with proper dignity and rights, their rights should not be irritated and disguised by the male people. Impact of India's growth and development must be reflected in protecting of women's career, life and rights and also provide adequate job to job seekers without any bias and discriminations. India's benefits and welfares are only found at power holder's life but it must be found and reflect even in all common and ordinary people's life. If all people's life is found at even platform then people May proud India is a developing country unless have to get shame to say that India is yet developing without external influence.

In India all are people but people are not respected equally and fairly, which has been routine activities and practices of the India's elite people culture and rulers. In this situation victims are seen and analysed in which most of people had become victims in the most of villages and families ,who are belong to bottom level of the society without possessing benefit and eligibility of political power, economic, power and other social equality. Their pathetic situations were created and emerged owing to inequality, disequilibrium and uneven social structure, which has created much up and down society in the India's Hindu majority society. Due to these irreparable India's social maladies women from poor family is feeling very difficult to survive in all the fields because where majority people having majesty wealth and property who have been dominating, treating unfairly and disrespecting poor people continuously. India is developing or under developing is not a matter in Indian soil but it has to work lot and hard to bring out success and victory in the poor and middle class people's life .
